

Poetry Series

Madeleine Garrison
- poems -

Publication Date:
2008

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

Madeleine Garrison()

Dragon

fire burning around

as the dragon breathed hot coals

singing his death song

Madeleine Garrison

Nothing To Fear

In this big, wide world
Not afraid to take on new things Painting over out sorrowful pasts
If we're together, there's nothing to fear
If we're together, there's nothing to fear

Madeleine Garrison

Ode To The Penguin

Floating on the icy water
there sits black and white,
from the frozen perch
he cannot take flight,
but instead dives
into the deep blues
that run beneath.

As the wind blows
and the birds fly,
the penguin emperor
slides on his stomach
down the snowy slope
into the frozen water.

Chasing little fish,
he catches some
and brings them
back to the little ones.

They gobble them down and give a little sigh
as the sun goes down
and is no longer high.

Cuddled together
for the darkening night,
floating on the icy water
there sits black and white.

Madeleine Garrison

Tears

Crimson tears flow
From lifeless eyes to Mingle with the Endless sands
Bestowing ever
Greater power upon
The demon god

Madeleine Garrison

Wind

wind whipping around going north, south, east, and west

to its destiny

Madeleine Garrison