Sam Adeyinka(January 20th 1991)

Playwright Samuel Kermis, a pen name for Adeyinka Damilola Samuel born at Lagos, near Ibadan in western Nigeria at exactly 8pm is a Nigerian motivational writer and an talented speaker. He is the Founder and CEO of a fast growing Organization known as Askwright International Centre. He used the pen name Samuel Kermis as a monument to his devoted mother, Oluwakemi Adeyinka nee Shitta-bey, who is now late.

He fell in love with writing some two years ago and started writing articles and later moved on to write for his church magazine; best known as 'SUCCESS HINT' and 'DYNAMIC ISSUES' respectively. He is the author of a bestselling book titled 'You are the Success Factor. He likes being natural and talking to people, he dislikes discrimination and greed. He is a savvy Nigerian populace, an avid reader and voracious consumer of any book, in particular, Motivational Piece.

He started his website; as a way to create an intellectual community. He post every day on topics of interest to his readers, and considers the reader comments even more important than his own posts!

He loves writing, listening to country and classical music, he is more of an assertive person. His achievement so far is due to leaning on the shoulders of those that have gone ahead of him and to his sheer hard work, determination and perseverance.

He is a young thespian and have starred in a radio presentation with Onileagbon titled "The New Politician" where he played the role of Honorable Cole, a stage play titled "Igbangaladi the Enemy Within" where he played the role of Emissary. His recent stage performance includes "Eziza" where he played the role of Olula with Dynamic Christian Studio. He has also starred in other drama presentations both home and abroad.

Samuel as written eight poems so far in his career as a creative writer, these poems include; My Love, Ideas rule the World, and gruesome Spam and among many others. He also has written two stage plays; Pilgrim's Journey, and God's Time.

Appraising Oluwabunmi Eniola

I hail thee
Great Female Poetess
How splendid hath thy works
I see them on Facebook virtually all the time.

Oh when I see them
I get so engrossed, monopolized and can't stop reading them
Oh Poetess how blessed hath thou amongst your contemporaries.

What can I more say to your wonderful skill,
And great artistic and scholarly works?
My Eniola Oluwabunmi I have this to say
This to say that you are indeed blessed by Almighty Olodudumare to affect your generation.

Gruesome Spam

I surfed tiredly on my my box, And what do I see?
It is this junk mail which I see before me.
I don't remember asking for you, yet I frequently get you,
Come let me trash you, you virtual sore.
Why do you come to me, you unwanted spam?

You come in astronomic numbers,
Making my mailbox crammed with virtual squatters,
Gmail and Yahoo I'm accustomed to,
I intended to stop my use of you but can't,
Owing to the information I have therein.

My accounts are flooded with spam,
Spam messages I do not apply for,
Rubbish, gobbledygook, and lies.
Who do you think will fall for your predatory lies?

Out, dammed spam! out, I say!
I don't want to see you in my box no more.
will this mail box ever be clean?
Apparently not today.

January 20th: My Birthday

Oh what a pleasant day!
Today marks the birthday of a legend
A legend in me.

My birthday falls on a Sunday
A very special day,
A day in which God rested off of his creation.

This is the day the Lord has made
And it is precious in my sight
For indeed I know I'm blessed.

Today is my birthday
Today is Sunday
Today rain falls for the very first time this year.

Is it not pleasant?
