

Poetry Series

suhas suresh
- poems -

Publication Date:
2014

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

suhas suresh(5-01-1999)

Immortal Martyr

See with thy frightened eyes
Where i find no malice.
Peace does thou bring,
For which violent has to cling
Sacrificing thy creation,
By guarding thy nation.
On staying upon the border
By standing with thy leg harder.
On those chilly night
Thou showst the killing might!

But upon a triumph, stays there a gloom
Even after thy doom.
And thus thou go martyr,
Where all seeks you as their dear.

suhas suresh

The Tryst

After all, the cold wind had seen you then.
The sun's optics had known you by hen.
So came thou to my heart still close,
But no, can't i touch thou from toes.
A frozen mind came still cold.
However thy eyes hadn't shown me so old
And amen. the cloud had opened here eyes with cries
But the bird had it's own style and cries with flies.

And see there a young poor boy with other,
So with their dreams full of feather.
The droplets still unevenly rified all,
And made their heart to fall.
Never they used to know their lost mind
Until they knew themselves fully kind.

suhas suresh