

Poetry Series

thomas hannah
- poems -

Publication Date:
2013

Publisher:
Poemhunter.com - The World's Poetry Archive

thomas hannah()

Animals As Pets

To some people, I think that people used animals as you would a tool or accessory. They use the animals for a while, and when they have no use for it anymore, they just throw it away like a piece of trash. like it was never meant to be here. Now, I have some friends that think animals (especially dogs) are an accessory that they can use until they don't want it anymore. Sometimes i just want to slap them right across the face for saying things mean or inhumane about animals. They just don't get how important animals are to the human race. When the animals are gone (extinct) they will only have themselves to blame for what they did to cause such chaos.

thomas hannah

Dogs Talk

dogs do talk we just don't understand what they are saying. Dog's are aliens to us, they are not all from here, they don't speak our language, and we don't speak theirs. Dogs to me, are biengs waiting for us to sit down and listen to what they have to say about us and what they think about how we have been treating them!

thomas hannah

Not Alone

When you think of the word alone, you think that alone means to never live with anyone, to not be social, or to never have loved. When I think of the word alone, I think of never being able to find your real purpose in life. To never have realized your full potential in life.

thomas hannah

School: To Learn Or Die?

School is a place where we come to learn, not to lay on our death bed

thomas hannah

True Friends That Are True

the only way to know if your friend is really a friend, is to ask them this, 'have you ever lied to me about what i like or wear' you will see in their eyes that they are lying, they dont look at you they just look at you head or your nose. a true friend doesn't lie to make you feel better about yourself, they should be honest, that what makes a true friend

thomas hannah